Historical Trait

■ The first foundings in the terrains of Smyczyna, Gronówko and Żakowo testify, that the areas of the community Lipno has been inhabited already in the age of primary communities. Historical monuments found in the burial ground in Gronówko (an iron spear top incrustated with silver from the old roman epoch, dishes from the roman epoch) date the burial ground at the II century.

The villages in the area of the community have been owned by the knighthood from the half X century till the half XIII century. Górka Duchowna, Targowisko and temporary also Radomicko have been church villages, owned by the Benedictians from Lubin.

In the XIII century an important trade path was crossing Święciechowa and Radomicko, which integrated the voivodships Wielkopolska and Silesia. There were trade hamlets in these two villages. In Radomicko, there was a branch from the trade path, leading through Górka Duchowna to Krzywiń.

During the Swedish invasion in the XVII centry, there have been many militaries versus the Swedish. The period of the Swedish invasion has left huge devastations on the area of community Lipno. The vicinities of Leszno belonged to the most plundered. For example, in Radomicko, the Swedish have taken the whole railway inventory. The XVIII century caused further damages to the community areas. In August 1794 started the Wielkopolska Rebellion. In the village Mórkowo cumulated a division with a few hundred rebels, mostly peasants with scythes and pitchforks.

Thereafter, during the French Revolution in 1789-1815, after his victory against Prussia, the emperor Napoleon paced with his army through Leszno, Lipno, Radomicko at his course to Poznań. The second time, but then already defeated by the Russians, Napoleon passed this path in 1812. To this event, there is a relevant legend. In Wilkowice, at the way from Leszno to Poznań, there is a flat rill stone, which is called the „Table of Napoleon”. The legend says, that Napoleon had collation on this rill stone. The rebels from Lipno have deserved very much during the Wielkopolska Rebellion at January 23th 1919. Then, the attack of two German armored trains have been defended.

In 1934 the community Lipno has been created, which included 15 villages. In its present form, the community exists since January 1st 1973.

The village Wilkowice, which together with Karolewko and Maryszewice has 1549 residents, owns two churches. The council temple in memorial of St. Martin, was built In the XVI century in a late gothic style. But at a later date there were shake-ups and renovations which caused, that the church lost its late gothic style and became to a baroque building. We should pick up on the monstrance from the XVI century, held in the late gothic style. The second church, which the parish received for her own in 1990, from 1894 was owned by the Evangelic- Augsburgish Parish. This parish existed till 1945.

From this moment, the church became state- owned. It was redone to a cereal magazine, then it was a magazine for building materials In 1996 there was a ceremony to consecrate the church in memorial of St. Eithd Stein. An inscription in German above the presbiteruim and an antique
